When we look at the history of medicine and surgery, several figures (61) as exemplary. For much of recorded history, works from the ancient Greeks led the medical establishment. The teachings of Galen and Hippocrates would prevail for centuries until the age of the Renaissance, where physicians began making strides in our understanding of the human body. Interactions between India and China during the transmission of Buddhism in the first century of the Christian era may have led to the proliferation of physician stories. In May of 2020, while Covid was rapidly spreading around the world, GMP-certified drug makers Sun Ten Pharmaceutical Co. and Chuang Song Zong Pharmaceutical Co. acquired licenses to make NRICM101 and immediately began developing production processes. They converted the original decoction used in the clinical trails into an easy-to-consume soluble powders, and quickly acquired licenses to manufacture them for export.

According to Winnie Hsueh, a manager in the international trade department at Sun Ten, traditional Chinese medicines are seen as health foods or supplements overseas and regulated accordingly. In October of 2020, the company acquired the registrations and permissions it needed to sell its NRICM101 formulation, branded as “Respire Aid,” in Luxembourg, the UK, Singapore, the US and Canada. It then worked with local doctors of Western and Chinese medicine and acupuncturists in these countries to introduce the preparation to patients with confirmed diagnoses. By the time of 2021’s Delta and Omicron outbreaks, Taiwanese communities abroad were buzzing about the formulation, and you could even buy it on Amazon. NRICM was able to get the formulation approved for sale in Europe and the US because Su excluded ingredients in the original TCM prescription that are banned overseas, such as ephedra, Manchurian wildginger, and gypsum.

Sun Ten recognized that people outside of Taiwan often have trouble taking Chinese medicines because they find them to be bitter, and the powdered forms earthy and hard to swallow. To get around these issues, foreign users often mix them with water. Hsueh says that Sun Ten improved its version's flavor and mouthfeel by adding extra mint, and then packaged it in convenient instant packets. "The goal was to make a 'good medicine that tastes good.'" But NRICM101 remains a Chinese medicine, and still has that Chinese medicine taste even when you mix it with water to make a drink. On the other hand, what matters to sick patients isn't flavor, but effectiveness. As of the end of January 2022, Sun Ten had sold 100,000 boxes of the formulation to 55 countries. In addition, even after recovering from Covid many people in the US and Europe have continued to have difficulty breathing or struggled with exhaustion so severe that they've had to take sick leave or even quit their jobs. Sun Ten has therefore introduced "RestorAid," a product aimed at the needs of these convalescent patients. In Taiwan, NRICM101 requires an examination and prescription from a doctor of TCM and the cost is borne by the National Health Insurance system. Overseas, the cost is about US$60 per box, with a ten-day course requiring roughly two boxes. But even so it is very inexpensive when compared to Western Covid drugs that can cost US$100-140 per day. 66. What was one of the main reasons NRICM101 was approved for sale in Europe and the US? (A) It was developed exclusively for Western markets from the beginning. (B) It was marketed as a prescription drug rather than a supplement. (C) Certain ingredients that are banned overseas were removed from the original formulation. (D) It was rigorously tested in Western clinical trials before being released. 67. Based on the article, which of the following statements best describes the reception of NRICM101 among overseas communities? (A) It was largely ignored due to skepticism towards Chinese medicine. (B) It became widely prescribed by Western doctors as a primary Covid treatment. (C) It was rejected by Western regulatory agencies due to safety concerns. (D) It gained popularity, especially among Taiwanese communities abroad.

68. What can be inferred about the price comparison between NRICM101 and Western Covid drugs?
- (A) NRICM101 is significantly more expensive than Western Covid drugs.
 (B) NRICM101 is relatively affordable compared to Western Covid drugs.
 (C) NRICM101 and Western Covid drugs have similar pricing structures.
 (D) The article does not provide enough information to compare the prices.
69. Why did Sun Ten introduce "RestorAid" after launching NRICM101?
- (A) To help people who still felt sick after recovering from Covid.
 (B) To make a product that tastes better for Western customers.
 (C) To follow new international rules for supplements.
 (D) To replace NRICM101 with a stronger Covid medicine.
70. How did Sun Ten make NRICM101 easier for foreign customers to use?
- (A) By making it less strong to follow Western rules.
 (B) By removing all the bitter ingredients.
 (C) By adding mint and putting it in easy-to-use packets.
 (D) By turning it into capsules like Western medicine.

Article B

Taking care of a pet turtle isn't as easy as you might think. Turtles require special care and frequent cleaning, and they don't play well with kids—turtles can bite and do not like to be handled, but they still make really fun pets to watch. Before you adopt a turtle, think about what resources and space you have available, what kind of turtle food you might want, as well as the fit for your home and family.

What Kinds of Turtles Make Good Pets?

The most common turtles owned as pets are the Box, Red-eared slider, Painted, Reeve's, Wood, and Caspian pond turtles. These are considered aquatic and semi-aquatic turtles. You can tell by looking at their shells; box turtles have a shell that looks more like a tortoise versus the flat streamlined shell of fully aquatic turtles for aqua-dynamics. Each of these turtles usually has a lifespan of more than 25 years, some of which even reach into the 80 year range, like the Box turtle. Temperaments vary among turtle breeds. Adult shell size can be anywhere from 6 to 12 inches in diameter. When you buy turtles from a pet store they are usually juvenile and still have lots of growing to do. Families with kids should also know that turtles carry salmonella, which can cause sickness in young children, immune-compromised individuals, and the elderly. It is advised that families with children under age 5 not own a turtle. Always wash your hands after handling a turtle or any part of their habitat to avoid getting sick.

A Turtle or a Tortoise?

Turtles enjoy water habitats or ponds to dip in, depending on the type. Whereas tortoises prefer dry, arid environments. They require different habitats, and some prefer outdoor enclosures to indoor enclosures. The red-eared slider enjoys a habitat like an aquarium with room for swimming and spots above water to rest and relax. The box turtle likes a land environment with only a small wading pool for cooling off. With one kind on land and one in water, not all turtles are the perfect fit for every household. If you are considering keeping your turtle outdoors, you need to know your outdoor temperatures. Arizona might be an ideal location for a Russian tortoise that loves hot, dry temperatures, but a painted turtle would need a large pond that might dry up in such an environment. Similarly, an outdoor enclosure in Maine would probably kill a Russian tortoise from too much cold and humidity. Keeping turtles or tortoises indoors is easier to regulate, but might eventually require a giant 75-gallon tank, depending on your turtle. Smaller juvenile turtles can be kept in smaller tanks, like a 40 Gallon, until they outgrow the space. That said, bigger tanks are easier to clean and turtles like to have more space to move, so it's not a bad idea to start with a big tank.

Fun Facts About Turtles

Even though turtles can be a bit of a handful as pets, they are amazing creatures. Here are a few cool facts about turtles:

- Most turtles hibernate for 10-20 weeks during the year, some even up to 9 months of the year.
- Turtles have been around for over 200 million years.
- The oldest known tortoise was an Indian Ocean Giant Tortoise that lived 152 years in captivity (after it was likely already 50 years old).
- Turtles are found on 6 out of 7 continents—all except Antarctica.
- A turtle shell is made of 60 different bones.

71. Why are turtles not recommended for families with young children?

- (A) They are difficult to clean and maintain.
- (B) They carry salmonella, which can make young children sick.
- (C) They require too much space to be kept indoors.
- (D) They are aggressive and often attack humans.
